

22ND MAYNARD SUNDMAN LECTURE

Astrophilately: Intersection of Space and Postal History

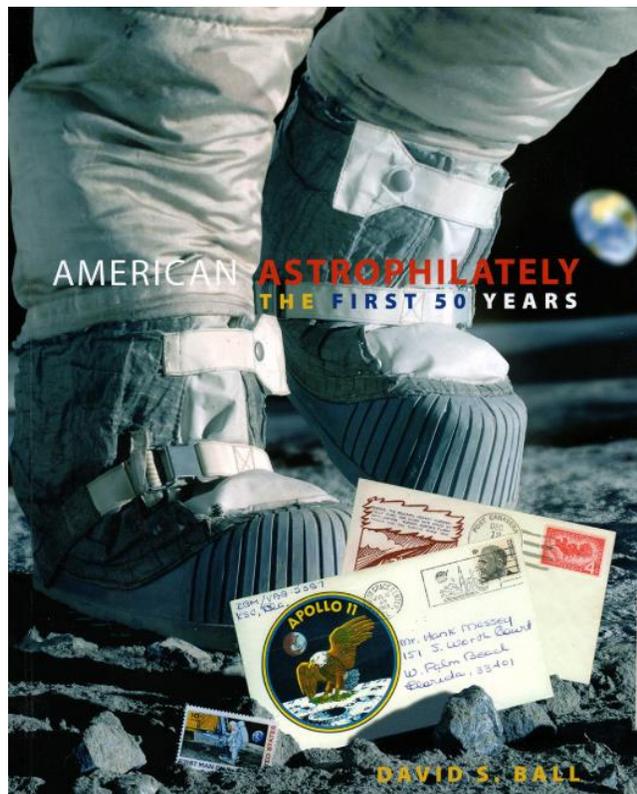

Please join us at 4:00 p.m. ET on Thursday, November 6, on Zoom for "Astrophilately: Intersection of Space and Postal History" with David S. Ball.

For nearly one hundred years, human ambitions to reach and explore space have been paired with philatelic aspirations. This intersection of space and postal history – astrophilately – uses covers, and particularly their postmarks linking the date and location of key events in aerospace history, to tell stories of humankind's conquest of the heavens. Learn from astrophilatelist and NASA Solar System Ambassador David Ball about how personal stories, philately, and rockets intertwine.

>> Learn more and register

David S. Ball

American Astrophilately: The First Fifty Years

